Humanities, Social Sciences and Education

Brunel University London's on-campus pathway provider, provides a foundation year in Humanities, Social Sciences and Education for students who may not qualify for direct entry to a degree programme and seek a supportive learning environment.

Study Humanities, Social Sciences and Education at Brunel

Humanities, Social Sciences and Education at Brunel are a vibrant community of students and academic staff who are engaged in exploring the world we live in and engaging with ways of changing it for the better. The college is committed to delivering excellent research led teaching and in preparing its students to lead successful lives and to have brilliant careers.

Choose Brunel and you'll be taught by leading experts in the fields of Arts, Education, and the Social Sciences, many of whom are active and renowned in their fields. To support its students the college runs a range of activities, workshops and programmes designed to equip its students to compete in the global economy. You will also have numerous opportunities to engage in extra-curriculum activities including the Brunel Arts, Hillingdon Literary Festival and Business Life.

Studying within easy reach of central London is a key advantage for Humanities, Social Sciences and Education students. You'll be close to some of the most important cultural, social and political institutions in the UK. From places like the British Library to BFI IMAX and our diverse and well-established schools network, you'll have plenty of opportunity for research, inspiration and to gain experience that will last a lifetime.
